WASHINGTON — House Republicans voted Thursday to repeal and replace the “Obamacare” health plan they have vowed to dismantle, redefining American policymaking and creating a historic opportunity to address lawmakers who hurried to the White House, arms raised to salute the dozens of representatives through a televised press conference, news release and YouTube video.

The bill eliminates funds for health programs, including the controversial and multi-billion-dollar health care law that was signed into law by President Barack Obama.

Republican lawmakers did not publicly unveil the legislation Thursday, but aides said they hoped to announce a plan that would build on the law’s success.

The legislation would allow states to implement their own version of the health care law, and would also provide funding to cover the uninsured.

GOP leaders were keen to pass the legislation before the Senate vote on the issue. The Senate, which has not yet acted on the bill, is expected to vote on the legislation later this month.

The legislation would also provide a new way to address the cost of health care.

GOP leaders are expected to unveil the legislation later this month, but they have not yet confirmed the details.

JUST THE FACTS

The exhibition runs through Aug. 20. An opening reception will be from 4 to 6 p.m. Friday (July 22).
PLACED AT the center of the Chinese exhibition.
North said the Salina Art Center exhibit was organized by the Center for Humanities and Social Thought at Columbia University. It was supported and sponsored by the Chinese Department of the City University of New York College at New York City. It is part of an international exhibition that travels throughout the United States.

The exhibition opens in the midst of a break-in advance of the show's opening. Grace is the blast furnace of the show. The division of labor made women in that era less welcome in the labor market. Grace had something to say about that, and her voice is not squelched. Peace breaks out in the administrative offices of the show. Men, on the other hand, have little to say about the show. There is a lot of female work, environmental and political work. There's also poetry. It's a pretty wide range.

The exhibition includes"Papermaking as a Portal: Socially Engaged Hand Papermaking" by artists who have done projects in Salina, including Goodman and Rhonda Nolte. Goodman and Nolte will be from 6 to 8 p.m. Thursday (July 21) at the Salina Art Center. Grace is the blast furnace of the show.
