- Book, "Bound". Juror, Cora Rosevear, Associate Curator Museum of Modern Art, NY

- Postcards, Invitations and Internet. The ACCI Gallery Berkeley, CA, 2009
My work was selected to be used as the featured art on the postcards, invitations and internet advertising for the "ACCI 2009 National Juried Exhibition". The work was chosen from over 900 entries. Jurors were Suzanne Tan, Executive Director of the Berkeley Art Center and John Toki, renowned studio artist and Professor at the California College of the Arts in Oakland.
- Newspaper, Post-Standard (Syracuse, New York). (December 14, 2008).
Review for the "20/20" International Exhibition at the Limestone Art Gallery in Fayetteville, NY. Katherine Rushwork, art critic for the paper, is the former director of the Michael C. Rockefeller Arts Center and the Central New York Institute for the Arts in Education.
She writes,
"The restrained assemblages of Missouri-based artist Teresa Harris also deserve high marks. The three pieces Titled "Ferns", "Upon Opening", and "Amiot" are soft-toned, minimally constructed references to the written words, the significance of books to life and links of ones' heritage to place. Harris engages both found and created objects in wood and paper, which she coats in a translucent patina of beeswax. The effect is evocative and deeply contemplative."
- Pittsburg Morning Sun, Front Page Article, three accompanying photographs, 2015
"We put a national call out for the exhibitions," said Rhona McBain, associate professor and chairperson of PSU's department of art. "We look at the scope of all the exhibitions so we have a full range." McBain said Harris' work was selected for display because of its craftsmanship and also for what it brings to the art department. "You can take a look at her pieces and see the craft, and the concept behind her work is absolutely stunning," McBain said. "One of the main missions of the Museum of Art is teaching," McBain continued. "Teachers from all across the university can come and speak to her work... They're able to use this as a teaching resource."
