PROJECTS & COLLABORATIONS

- 2018 "The Evolution of Agent Yu": an animation in-progress composed of cut paper figures, text, and background collages then photographed frame-by-frame. Since September, 2012, Deborah F. Lawrence and I have been slowly collaborating on a stop-motion animation project, combining our skills as visual artists. We have created a fictional art student from China to explore issues of artistic freedom and corporate greed (Portland, OR and Seattle, WA).
- 2016 "Tempo & Transition": curatorial project. Hosted by Cascade Gallery with support provided by Sandy Sampson gallery director at Portland Community College Cascade campus. Exhibition includes flip books, animation and video created in a variety of materials by artists responding to the theme of time and change. The exhibition features several devices emulating pre-cinema mechanisms including a large-scale zoetrope, a video peep show, and Pedal Arcade a combination of a bicycle and cinema viewer. I constructed the apparatuses; and the electronics & programming on Pedal Arcade designed and built by Richard Armstrong. This exhibition happened with community collaboration, featuring over 100 student and 20 professional artists' work in the installation (Portland, OR).
- 2016 "Unbroken Arbor Vitae (Unbroken Tree of Life)": a collaborative site-specific installation created for the Suho Memorial Paper Museum in 2014. Times4, four Portland artists: Anne Greenwood, Diane Jacobs, Shu-Ju Wang and myself, collaboratively designed a white paper forest, guided by our native woodlands of the Pacific Northwest. We transformed an entire floor of the Paper Museum into a place to focus viewers on reverence and regeneration of the natural world through the experience with our sculptural trees, photographs and video (Taipei, Taiwan). Unbroken Arbor Vitae made an Oregon debut as featured installation in the special exhibition, "Chasing Paper," at the Lake Oswego Festival of the Arts, June 24, 25 and 26, 2016 (Lake Oswego, OR).
- 2015 "Faces & Places: Illuminating Female Pillars of the Jade and Midway Districts": a project under the direction of writing instructor Paul Montone and myself as photography instructor at PCC. Through funding by the Jade-Midway Place Making Projects, Portland Community College Southeast Campus students enrolled in Art 140 Intro to Digital Photography and Writing 121 courses created a booklet showcasing women who are making a difference within the Jade and Midway Districts. The booklet features student-taken portraits and student written biographical sketches. Students, through their process of community engagement and art making, had an opportunity to celebrate women who are vital and important in the communities surrounding the Southeast Campus (Portland, OR).
- 2013 "Fold Here": photographed an on-going installation and performance throughout the month of March. Collaborated with Maria T. D. Inocencio to document her piece as it unfolded throughout the month at the Nine Gallery. My photographs were displayed in the gallery, new ones added each week to show the progression of her project. Also documented the movement piece that was performed on March 16th, entitled, "Fold, and Fold and Fold Again" conceived and scored by Linda K. Johnson (Portland, OR).
- 2010 "Recollection": produced, directed, filmed & edited by Tavé Fascé Drake and myself. A lyrical and visual recollection; the viewer is invited to feel whimsy, possibility, and the beauty that can be inherent in everyday life. "Recollection" is composed of a mixture of bicycle, movement, and shadow images set to "Bicycle" a song by Caroline Lufkin. The imagery was captured in our own Portland neighborhood inspired by the Portland cycling culture of both artists.
