

"AMBIGUOUS SOVEREIGNTY" 40" x 30" OIL ON CANVAS

“Kriya” is a collection of paintings that depict the expressions of women in india. In Sanskrit, the word means “action,” “deed”, “effort.” The rich panoply of colors seen in the apparel of indian women, in their henna embellishments and simple decorations outside their homes, accentuates their simple actions. The colors and impetuous strokes shows the artist’s admiration for women who use vibrant colors to elevate their spirits and their mundane surroundings.

UNTITLED 1 30" x 22" WATERCOLOR

The interplay of light and texture in the cave temple sculptures of Mahabalipuram, India, inspired this collection. Fluorescent washes of color with shades of black have been used to bring out the intricate details. The pieces in this collection are untitled to maintain the original meaning represented by the sculptures.
