

Bibliography

- Albright, K., Hall, K., & Thomas, J. (2015). Students Discover teaching modules: Shark teeth forensics. (C. Burgess, Ed.) N.C. Museum of Natural Sciences. <http://studentsdiscover.org/teaching-modules/symbiosis-in-the-soil/biomes-and-dandelions/>
- Armentrout, K., Glenn, D., & Pasion, D. (2015). Students Discover teaching modules: eMammal camera trap stakeout (C. Burgess, Ed.). N.C. Museum of Natural Sciences. <http://studentsdiscover.org/research/mammals/>
- Beaman, B., & Burgess, C. (1996). Freshwater wetlands of North Carolina and the southeastern United States: An educator's guide. Raleigh, NC: N.C. Museum of Natural Sciences.
- Blanchard, A., Cochrane, L., & Lawson, A. (2015). Students Discover teaching modules: Symbiosis in the soil. (C. Burgess) N.C. Museum of Natural Sciences. <http://studentsdiscover.org/teaching-modules/symbiosis-in-the-soil/biomes-and-dandelions/>
- Burgess, C. (2015, May). Science comes to life in Whiteville. Carolina Country, 35.
- Burgess, C. (2012, Summer). The doctor is in: Museum's new window on animal health lets visitors see it all. Retrieved October 22, 2015 from http://www.wakeliving.com/2012\_8\_21\_The\_doctor\_is\_in.aspx
- Burgess, C. (2010, March). Rain gardens: Put stormwater runoff to work and help improve water quality. Carolina Country, 14-15.
- Burgess, C. (Ed.). (2010). Exploring North Carolina in the schools. N.C. Museum of Natural Sciences. Retrieved from <http://naturalsciences.org/learn/learning-resources/exploring-nc>.
- Burgess, C. (2009) The water connection: Water resources, drought and the hydrologic cycle in North Carolina. Raleigh, NC: N.C. Dept. of Environment and Natural Resources.
- Burgess, C. (2009, June). Composting with worms. Carolina Country, 27.
- Burgess, C. (2008). The Albemarle-Pamlico: Our coastal treasure. Raleigh, NC: Albemarle-Pamlico National Estuary Program, N.C. Dept. of Environment and Natural Resources.
- Burgess, C. (2008, Summer) Purple martins majesty. Naturalist, 8-10.
- Burgess, C. (2007, Summer). High hopes for a lowland arboretum. Naturalist, 8-9.
- Burgess, C. (2007, Summer). Museum strives to make homeschoolers feel at home. Naturalist, 5-6.
- Burgess, C. (2007, January). Native azaleas for the home garden. Carolina Country, 38-38.
- Burgess, C. (2007, March). Native plants for all seasons. Carolina Country, 16-19.
- Burgess, C. (2006). Taking the adventure out of disaster response. Water Resources Research Institute WRRRI News, 355, 1, 3-4.
- Burgess, C. (2006, Summer). Bats make good neighbors. Naturalist, 2-5.
- Burgess, C. (2005, October). The mysteries of monarch migration. Carolina Country, 22-23.
- Burgess, C. (2005, May). A garden with wings. Carolina Country, 38.
- Burgess, C. (2004). Gill damage in Puget Sound fish. Environmental Health Perspectives, 112(5), A301.
- Burgess, C. (2004). Risky shellfish? Assessing hazards of clam consumption. Environmental Health Perspectives, 112(8), A491.
- Burgess, C. (2003). Livestock drugs infiltrate dust: Another hazard for farmers. Environmental Health Perspectives, 111(13), A717.
- Burgess, C. (2003). Estrogens in coastal waters: The sewage source. Environmental Health Perspectives, 111(4), A232.
- Burgess, C. (2001). Red flag for fish: Brevetoxin induces more--and worse--effects. Environmental Health Perspectives, 109(4), A178-179.
- Burgess, C. (1999, November). The everything-you-wanted-to-know-about-rivers almanac. Wildlife in North Carolina, 121-124.
- Burgess, C. (1998, Fall/Winter) Volunteers bring fossils to light. Naturalist, 8-10.
- Burgess, C. (1997). Wading through questions about aquatic toxins. Environmental Health Perspectives, 105(10), 1048.
- Burgess, C. (1995). Wetland plants from test tubes. Raleigh, NC: North Carolina Sea Grant.
- Broome, S., Rogers, S., & Seneca, E. (1992). Shoreline erosion-control using marsh vegetation and low-cost structures (C. Burgess, Ed.). Raleigh, NC: North Carolina Sea Grant.
- Connors, J., Miller, M., Palmer, M., Small, J., Weems, J., & Smart, K. (2004). Pushy plants and alien animals (C. Burgess, Ed.). Raleigh, NC: N.C. Museum of Natural Sciences.
- Copeland, B.J. (1998). Salt marsh restoration: Coastal habitat enhancement (C. Burgess, Ed.). Raleigh, NC: NC State University Department of Zoology.
- Dobson, C., Gannon, R., Putnam, G., Clark, A., & Burgess, C. (n.d.). Improving water quality in your own backyard. Raleigh, NC: N.C. Department of Environment and Natural Resources.
- Locklear, E., Watts, B., Maxa, E., & Burgess, C. (2000). Career exploration mentoring program: Coordinator's handbook. Raleigh, NC: North Carolina Cooperative Extension.
- Tolley, L. (rev. 2013). Discover North Carolina's river basins (C. Burgess, Ed.). Raleigh, NC: N.C. Office of Environmental Education.